

Statement

Andrew Rubinstein

“Most of my work are imbued with a very personal pseudo-science. I dream astronomically, with vast broad spaces. I also believe we live in a world of approximate precision, which fools us into believing in exactitudes. As a boy, I wanted consistency and precision, but I was taught some early lessons not to always rely on people's words. In this way, I am mingling very personal emotional experiences with failed attempts at creating an order out of it all.”
